

CABOT

Community Saddened by Deaths of Mrs. May Lance and Little Doris Lawson.

In the death of Mrs. May E. Lance, wife of the late Paul Lance, which occurred at the home of her son, W. P. Lance, at Lower Cabot, the community has lost a citizen beloved, who will be greatly missed by the many to whom her gentle-heartedness and kindly virtues were familiarly known. Modest to a fault, she lived that life of unaffected goodness and kindness which is irresistibly winsome and which lends its halo to the universal mother memory. She passed away in the midst of her family and in the possession of every comfort and every ministry which love could supply. Hers was the simple, guileless nature possessed by those of whom the Master said, "Of such is the kingdom of heaven." She leaves two daughters and one son, two sisters and a brother in Rhineland, Wis., and a sister in Marshfield. The floral tributes testified the affection of those nearest and dearest. Funeral services were held at the home, Rev. M. W. Hale officiating. Her remains were laid to rest in the family lot in Durant cemetery at Lower Cabot.

Sorrow and affliction came to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Lawson when their daughter, Doris Belle, aged 11 years, was taken away by death after only a few days' illness of heart trouble. Medical aid was summoned, and a council of doctors was held, but all that human aid could do proved unavailing. On Wednesday morning she was released from all earthly sorrow. She was one of a family of six children, an excellent scholar, a member of the M. E. Sunday school. The funeral service was held at the home Friday afternoon, Rev. J. S. Crossland officiating, assisted by Rev. F. E. Currier. The attendance of her schoolmates and the King's Daughters, who sat in a body, and the profusion of flowers that covered the casket bore testimony of love for her and sympathy for the bereaved parents, brothers and sisters. Her remains were placed in the family lot in Durant cemetery.

In West Topsham, June 6, passed on to the higher life, Mrs. Lucinda Jackson, aged 77 years, 8 months and 24 days. She had laid her rest on the green hillside, away from life's weary pain; the dear loving mother and friend has gone from us now, never to suffer again. We have laid her to rest, the mother and friend that we loved, so faded and cold and still; but, oh! in the land where the angels dwell, the jewel shined still. And though heavy the cross the Master sends, He has promised a glorious morning, when we see, not as now, but face to face, and know as we are known. When the shadows are lifted, the mists have cleared, and we walk no more alone, in that beautiful land, some time, somewhere, He will give us back our own.

RED CROSS WORK VITAL.

Just as Important as Bullets and Cannon, Says General Wood.

Gen. Leonard Wood says that the work of the Red Cross is as vital in winning the war as bullets and cannon. He sends this message to the New England committee of the American Red Cross war fund, and through them appeals to every man and woman in this section of the country to give their bit during Red Cross week, which opens next Monday.

"The functions of the Red Cross in modern war are of the greatest importance. It is the big brother of the medical department of the army," says Gen. Wood. "It is the official representative of the war department. Its functions cover the territory on the firing line and trenches back to the villages and cities of the home land."

"American men and women cannot give their services in a better cause than that of the Red Cross. Upon its efficient organization and maintenance depends to a large extent the successful conduct of the war so far as the handling of the sick and wounded are concerned. It should receive our strongest support and our best efforts. Everybody in New England should give their bit."

The machinery for the New England-wide campaign that will give $7,000,000 for the Red Cross is in perfect running order. There are 63 chapters throughout New England and hundreds of auxiliary branches. All of these have organized teams and will canvass their territory thoroughly. The whole of New England will be ablaze with advertising and the men behind the movement are enthusiastic and feel that the $7,000,000 will be forthcoming from New England that has never failed to back any measure of relief.

What Part Will American Women Play in the War?

Agnes Reppier answers this question in the July Woman's Home Companion when she says:

"And women? American women? They have a big and a hard part to play in the nation's struggle for right. Whatever may have been their sentiments before a state of war was declared, honor and honesty now demand unflinching allegiance to their country. The eight leading colleges for women which pledged their loyal services to the administration, blazed a trail which we may wisely follow. No one can accuse the heads of these colleges, or their faculties, of harboring the 'military spirit.' On the contrary, it was well known that some of them were earnest advocates of peace. The document which they endorsed, and sent to Mr. Wilson, breathed a spirit of integrity as well as of courage and devotion."

"Although we believe that the settlement of international difficulties by war is fundamentally wrong, we recognize that in a world crisis such as this it may become our highest duty to defend by force the principles upon which Christian civilization is founded. Any service which we can render, and (so far as we can speak for them) any service which the thousands of trained women whom we have sent out from our colleges can render, we hereby place at the disposal of our country."

What It Costs to Bring Up Children?

A business man writing for the July American Magazine says:

"I am spending nine thousand dollars a year in raising my three children. This may seem a large amount, and it is. By the time my children are grown I figure that each of them will represent an outlay of one hundred thousand dollars, including the interest on the sum expended. Sometimes I wonder whether this isn't too much. Then my love for my children sweeps over me and I think that nothing I can spend on them is too much."

"I am called a successful man. Probably I am. Some years I make a good deal of money. Some years I do not."

Im going to prescribe Resinol for that eczema

"I might give you a formal prescription, but what's the use? It would cost you more than a jar of Resinol and I shouldn't be nearly as sure of the results! You see, I have been using Resinol Ointment for over twenty years. During that time I have tried out dozens of new ways of treating skin-troubles, but I have always come back to Resinol—I know that it stops itching at once, generally heals the eruption, and that it contains nothing which could irritate the skin. You can get a jar at any drug store."

Diplomas Presented to Whitcomb High School Seniors Last Evening.

The 31st annual graduating exercises of Whitcomb high school drew a packed house at the town hall last evening. Music was by Gilson's orchestra of seven pieces. The decorations were in the class colors, green and gold, and the class motto, "Finished, but Beginning," appeared prominently. John J. Wilson, before presenting the diplomas for the school board, announced that all the teachers of the district had been invited to return for another year, that all but three had consented to return and that Principal Haskins again would head the faculty. For the first time at this school the seniors wore the traditional caps and gowns of graduates. The innovation won much favorable comment. After prayer by Rev. W. C. Harvey, the program included the salutatory, with essay, "The Louvre," by Charlotte Lovell Fisher; essay, "Some American Inventors," Ralph Harold White; essay, "Our Trip to Washington," Elsie May Snell; essay, "The Story of Our Navy," Claude Berton Williamson; essay, "Territorial Growth of the United States," Ila Sarah Spaulding; valedictory, with essay, "What American Women Can Do," Hazel Eva Williamson; song, "The Nightingale and the Rose," girls' chorus.

The Whitcomb high school baseball team, accompanied by a good number of rooters, went to White River Junction yesterday and on their arrival found the grounds flooded with water from a recent shower, a depth of three inches surrounding the home base for some distance. The game scheduled with Woodstock high school to break the championship tie existing between the two teams was not attempted. One or two short showers occurred here during the afternoon while in Royalton, the first town toward White River Junction, no rain fell all day.

James R. Turner is home from his work at Portland, Me., to visit his sister, Mrs. Harry Emery.

County Agricultural Agent James C. Otis of White River Junction, with Mrs. Otis and the baby, was at the inn yesterday.

Lester Perkins is employed at the Demers bakery.

Dr. Leroy A. Hovey of Southington, Conn., has sold his medical practice and will take a year's special course in diseases of the eye, ear and throat.

My annual income averages nearly thirty thousand dollars. According to the income tax reports there are 22,184 other men in America who make as much or more.

"Few of us realize how much we spend on our children. It is a liability that we fathers assume and that we find joy in carrying. I have been married nearly twenty years. My mode of living is not extravagant. My personal expenditures are not large. I do not keep a motor car, but ride in the L or in the subway. I am active, love work, and find more joy in business than in golf or club life or any form of sport, frivolity or so-called recreation. The greatest fun in the world is work."

The Last-Minute Garden.

In the June Woman's Home Companion Grace Tabor has an article on how to arrange for and what to put in the last-minute garden.

"It is all very well to say that there should be no such thing," she says, "but sometimes there just has to be, or else do this."

"When the general scheme is decided upon, it is time to consider in detail the plants with which it is to be executed—and not before. This is contrary to established customs, perhaps; but if you will go about it in this way you will find, I am sure, that it is better than deciding first what plants you will have and then trying to arrange them harmoniously. It takes slower work than one can allow in a last-minute garden, to do this."
